

Prof. Dr. Anna Rita Bilia is associate professor at the University of Florence and Director of the Post-graduate School of Hospital Pharmacy.

In 1995 she got the national award "Claudio Redaelli" of the Italian Society of Phytochemistry for outstanding young researchers in the field of phytochemistry and in 2002 she got the international "Egon Stahl Medal" of the Society for Medicinal plant and natural product Research for researcher younger than 40 years, working in natural products. In 2018 she got the international "Quihung Prize" of the Academia of Chinese Medicine for her studies of quality control and innovative nanoformulations related to plants of the Traditional Chinese Medicine.

She is the president of Interdepartmental Center of Services for Biotechnologies of Agrarian, Chemical, Industrial interest (CIBIACI).

She is expert of the European Pharmacopoeia and member of the TCM group. She was member of the Board of the ADRITELF. She is past-president and vice-president of the International Society for Medicinal Plant and Natural Product Research (GA). She is the Italian delegate of the board of directors and member of the scientific committee of the European Scientific Cooperation on Phytotherapy (ESCOP). She is past-president of the Italian Society of Phytochemistry and Sciences of Medicinal, Food and Fragrant Plants (SIF).

Prof. Bilia's list of publications shows more than 240 papers in the most reputed international journals of her field of research, she is authors of numerous invited book monographs and chapters.