

Biography

Luciano De Sio is an assistant Professor at Sapienza University of Rome. He graduated in physics (2003) and did his PhD in material science (2006) from the University of Calabria. Luciano spent more than 7 years working in different international scientific organizations such as EPFL, Philips Research and Beam Engineering. Today Luciano is the group leader of a young and highly motivated research group working in the field of thermo-plasmonics, nanotechnology, optics and bio-photonics.