

Gianluca Ferraro, graduated in Nanotechnology Engineering at the University of Rome La Sapienza, is now a PhD candidate at the School of Chemical Engineering Department of the University of Birmingham, where he focused his research in the study of the formation and stability of bulk nanobubbles.