

BIOGRAPHY

Dr Francesca Maranghi, researcher at the Center for Gender-Specific Medicine of the Istituto Superiore di Sanità. Since 1990, her research activities are focused on health risk assessment with the elaboration of in vivo experimental models to identify and characterize the effects of chemicals (agrochemicals, chemical contaminants, endocrine-active substances etc.) and nanomaterials, including the development of innovative animal models to study alterations during the peripubertal age, for the identification of appropriate biomarkers potentially transferred to humans. Leader of several projects funded by EFSA, WP/Task leader in NANoREG and NANOGENOTOX projects, National expert concerning the activities of OECD, EFSA in the frame of Reprotox.