Matthew Wolf was awarded his PhD in computational physics from University College London, following which he took up a post-doc position in the chemistry department of Uppsala University, Sweden. He is currently a post-doc in the group of Alison Walker, in the department of physics of the University of Bath, UK, and is funded through the EoCoE-II project.